An Historical Overview of Mt. Calvary and Friendship Churches, Wicomico County, Maryland, and Flower Hill, Somerset County, Maryland

Churches have long served African Americans as a central gathering place for fellowship and spirituality. Their role in promoting education and worship has frequently been noted. Not only did churches fill important spiritual and cultural roles within African-American communities, but also they kept record books containing important information for historians, both family and otherwise.

Mt. Calvary, Friendship, and Flower Hill each participated in the colorful history of the Delaware Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The Delaware Conference originated in the Philadelphia area when Richard Allen and Absalom Jones led a walkout from St. George's Methodist Church after they were asked to move to other seats during prayer.

Not long after their dispute with the leadership at St. George's, Allen and Jones formed the Free African Society. Although they did not intend for the Free African Society to be a church, it served as a defacto church in Philadelphia. W. E. B. Dubois later called the Free African Society the "first wavering step of a people toward organized social life." The Free African Society developed leanings toward a Meeting form of worship because of the strong Quaker abolitionist presence in Philadelphia. As the FAS developed increasingly religious functions, its elders determined to build a church house. Because of ongoing racial tensions with the Methodists, the FAS voted to affiliate with the Episcopalian Church.

Allen, however, continued to be drawn to the discipline and lifestyle of Methodism, saying that "The plain and simple gospel suits best for the people." After a yellow plague epidemic swept Philadelphia in 1793, racial tensions thawed somewhat and Allen built a church affiliated with St. George's that came to be known as Mother Bethel. Methodist Bishop Ashbury presided over the dedication on July 29, 1794.

Tensions between St. George and Bethel continued however. In 1815 and 1816, following several court trials, the congregation prevailed in its right to be recognized as independent. In the summer of 1816, Allen convened in Philadelphia with other Black Methodist Episcopal leaders from the region. From this meeting, the leaders

"Resolved that the people of Philadelphia, Baltimore and other places who may unite with them under the name and style of the African Methodist Church of the United States of America and that the book of Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church be adopted as our discipline."

As a result of the conference, Bethel Church became Mother Bethel African Methodist Church.

In 1852, in Philadelphia, at Zoar Methodist Church, the first Convention of Colored Local Preachers and Laymen convened the first organized gathering of black Methodists. They met annually until 1863 to discuss their issues. In 1864, from this group came the Delaware Conference, a separate conference of the black Methodists organized after the 1864 Methodist Episcopal General Conference. At its inception, the Delaware Conference comprised all 34

African-American churches stretching from New York and New Jersey, through Philadelphia, into Delmarva and Virginia.

The first of the congregations that form the basis of these records began in 1864 in Allen, Maryland. Aided by local leaders, Samuel Solomon, Jacob Cottman, and Aaron Gale, Friendship Church organized to provide worship opportunities for local residents. According to local tradition, former slaves had worshipped both in the balcony of Asbury as well as in a sheep barn belonging to Bob Jones on land adjoining Wicomico Creek near Reddings. From its inception, Friendship was a member of the newly formed Delaware Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It belonged to the Salisbury District of the conference. The original church was 20 by 24 feet.

The original church location is documented by the 1877 Lake, Griffing and Stevenson atlas, which indicated the site of a "Col'd Ch" on the road to Upper Trappe (now called Allen) and the Upper Ferry crossing of the Wicomico River. Today's Friendship Methodist Church was constructed in 1923 in the center of the historical black community known as the "Ferry Road Settlement." On the northwest of the church sits a cemetery dating from the nineteenth century to the present. Maryland Historic Preservation Plan has listed the current church as Category A, which signifies buildings which must be preserved due to their architectural and historic merit.

Across Upper Ferry Road sits the Educational and Community Hall for Friendship United Methodist Church. Built in 1895, the structure served as a school for Allen's African-American population during segregation. Older records show an earlier school dating back to 1877, if not as early as 1872, when Maryland state law required boards of education to provide at least one school in every district for black children. The current structure on Upper Ferry Road served until 1955 when students were bused to a new school in Fruitland.

Mt. Calvary began as a black Methodist congregation in Fruitland in 1873. At that time, Fruitland was a small village called Fork Town. In 1875, the trustees purchased the former Presbyterian church located on the east side of the village. Named as grantors were the trustees of the Salisbury Presbyterian Church along with Purnell Toadvine and H. H. Dashiell. For the purchasing Methodists, Israel Pollitt, Levin Morris, Sandy Pollitt, Daniel Morris, George Pollitt, Levin Robinson, and Solomon Humphreys served as trustees. The trustees paid $250.00 for the property. The congregation moved the existing church from the site and constructed a small chapel in 1875. Sometime around 1889, members of Mt. Calvary constructed a second church. The current building was built in 1920. The cornerstone is inscribed with Mt. Calvary Memorial M. E. Church, the name used at the time. Reverend J. D. Pitts served as minister. Located on the church property is a cemetery dating from the late nineteenth century. Buried within the cemetery are several black clerics, including Reverend Daniel Ridout, who served as district minister and officiated many of the baptisms and marriages herein transcribed.

Flower Hill United Methodist Church is located just east of Route 13 on Flower Hill Church Road in Eden, Somerset County, Maryland. Built in 1911, the church has a cemetery located across the road.

In the back of the original record book is recorded the following historical information, “Mt. Calvary M. E. Church was organized during the early part of the year of 1875 about April 14. The exact date is not positively known. The present edifice was rebuilt ..... by the Rev. Mason, now-deceased; and is valued at $1200.00 and insured for $1000.00. The parsonage which is situated at Fruitland, Md. was enlarged and remodeled in May, 1902 by Rev. J. R. Holland. It is valued at $1300.00 and is insured for $800.00.

Friendship, M. E. Church located at Allen, Trappe District, Wicomico Co., Md. about five miles from Fruitland, Md., was established in 1865. It is valued at $1500.00 and insured for $675.00. It has been repaired and improved in 1907 by the Rev. S. Hammond.

Flower Hill Mission, located at Flower Hill, Somerset Co., Md., was established in 1886. It is valued at $450.00 and was repaired and improved in 1907 by Rev. S. Hammond.”

In a separate historical record entry, the following information is provided:

“Isaac Henry White, pastor of Fruitland Charge, Wicomico, Co., Maryland. This is my eleventh appointment and 38th year in the ministry enclosing year evangelist and one year supply. This charge now comprises two churches, Mt. Calvary at Fruitland and Friendship near Allen, five miles apart, two ill provided school houses, schools very poor and poorly attended. I find no historical record and record of membership does now show how the members come. Yet this book is .... Term begins one term begins April 2, 1905, ends march 25, 1906, in which time the parsonage yard was enclosed, a lot second and summer temple built with a large upper room for a hall.”

The record of baptisms in the three churches begins on April 23, 1889 and ends on May 20, 1917. Information details include the date, name of the baptized, status as adult or child, date of birth, mode of baptism, location of the baptism, officiating minister, and occasional remarks.

Marriage records begin on May 14, 1889 and end in April 1917. In addition, two marriages from 1933 are included in the original record book. Information in the records for both brides and grooms includes full names, residences, ages of next birthday, places of birth, occupations, names of parents, place of marriage, date of marriage, officiating clergyman, and witnesses.

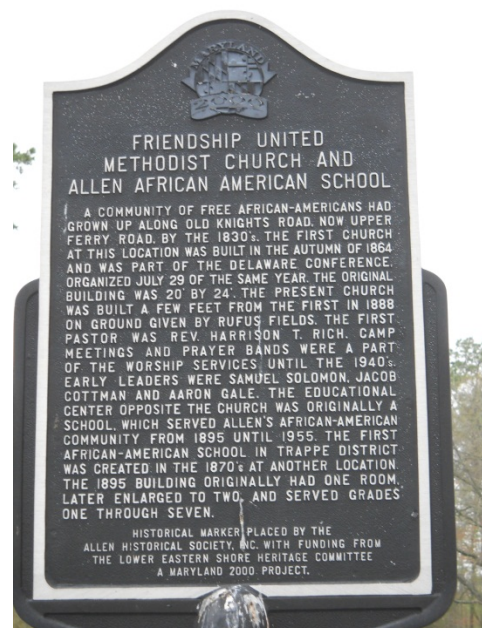

Common surnames found in the records include Anderson, Banks, Barkley, Brewington, Dashield (including variant spellings), Dennis, Dutton, Hudson, Jones, King, Polk, Townsen(d), Williams, and Wright. These names continue to be commonly found in the counties of Wicomico and Somerset.

The original record book is held in the archives of the Nabb Research Center of Salisbury University, Salisbury, MD.

In order to help the researcher have as complete a picture as possible of the records of these churches and their attendees, we have included the following pages of gravestone transcriptions found at Mt. Calvary United Methodist Church Cemetery in Fruitland, Maryland. As shown at the top of the page, this partial listing was done as part of the online database USGenWeb by James Karl Black.

There is also a cemetery next to Friendship Church in Allen, Maryland and one across the street from the former Flower Hill Church in Eden. A listing of those gravestones has not been located.
